GNAC News & Notes

THREE EMERGE UNSCATHED AFTER OPENING CONFERENCE

WEEKEND: By the time the first weekend of GNAC play had ended, three conference teams emerged from competition with 2-0 records.

Two of those teams basically set up the way the coaches picked it in the GNAC Preseason Coaches Poll. Western Washington and Central Washington each won both of their matches, which sets up a big rivalry match between the two teams on Saturday in Ellensburg.

Western Washington got the job done at home, scoring a four-set win over Seattle Pacific on Thursday and a three-set win over Saint Martin's on Saturday. The Vikings hit .290 as a team and limited opponents to a .127 hitting percentage. They won their sixth and seventh straight matches after opening the year with three losses to top-25 teams.

Central Washington, meanwhile, had to work a little harder in a four-set win at Alaska on Thursday and a five-set win at Alaska Anchorage on Saturday. The Wildcats saw the Seawolves come back from two sets down to force the deciding fifth frame. Central hit .400 in that final set to leave no doubt in the win. For the week, CWU hit .211.

The third 2-0 squad is Concordia. The Cavaliers opened GNAC play with a four-set win at Western Oregon before knocking off Montana State Billings in three sets on Saturday. The victories give Concordia a three-match win streak. The Cavaliers finished with a .198 hitting percentage for the week.

ANOTHER GREAT SHOWING FOR THE GNAC AT THE SHOWCASE: The D2 West Region Volleyball Showcase has been a great non-conference weekend for the GNAC ever since the tournament's inception and the 2018 edition was no different.

The conference went 22-22 in the three-day event, which was hosted this season by the PacWest Conference. Western Washington and Central Washington led the way with a pair of four-match weekends. The Vikings, in the top-ranked Azusa pod, finished with wins over Cal State San Bernardino, Azusa Pacific, Sonoma State and Biola. It is the second time in the five-year history of the Showcase that WWU has finished 4-0.
